

The Walla Walla Valley Farm to School program relies on a wide range of community support to thrive! We rely on a team of paid educators for the bulk of program activities to ensure continuity and consistency in programming and gardens. We believe equity is an important part of the work we do, and hope to shape attitudes about the worth of a healthy food system and food system education. Paying fair wages, with benefits and ongoing education, is an important part of building equity and a necessary part of our work and impact.

Walla Walla Valley Farm to School works hard to earn dollars through local, State and Federal grants. We also rely on individual financial support, sponsorships and in-kind donations such as seeds; mulch; starts; produce; and more. Our volunteers are instrumental in ensuring quality programming, and assistance with outreach and garden maintenance. Paid and unpaid interns also fill a myriad of vital roles!

Because you value our work, we have many options for you to engage:

- Make a Donation: Financial and In-kind assistance are always needed. Donate via our donation page HERE or contact us at farmtoschool@slcww.org to inquire about in-kind donations such as seed, soil, mulch, and services. We are grateful for your support!
- Sponsor a Garden: If you are a business or organization, receive exclusive public recognition of your support for a specific garden site, or a portion thereof, as well as additional benefits. Learn more HERE
- Purchase our T-shirt or Hoodie: Made from recycled fabric (or choose your own), and printed to order by local print shop T-Walla Walla, our merch is not just stylish but also sustainable! Click HERE to order online or head on down to the shop and have it made while you wait (19 N 2nd Ave, Walla Walla)
- Volunteer: WWVF2S has many options depending on your interest, affinity and expertise. Gardens, classrooms, outreach, workshops, grant-writing, social media, newsletters and more! Click HERE for our Volunteer Interest Form!
